

Training: Defensive Driving

We traditionally associate defensive driver training with images of armoured vehicles and armed security teams driving at high speed from one location to another in hostile environments. In fact, road traffic accidents and vehicle related security incidents including roadside robbery, carjacking and illegal checkpoints are some of the most common risks employees can face often daily in many regions around the world.

Training our employees to be able to identify potential threats and hazards and understand the risks these pose to road travel is a simple but effective skill. Understanding the environment we are in will help us reduce our exposure to risks and ensure that if the worst was to happen, we have contingency planning in place to minimise the impact.

Defensive Driver Training

Control Risks' 2-day defensive driver training course combines classroom-based knowledge transfer sessions with practical driver training. Attendees will be introduced to the threats and risks faced when driving in higher risk environments, road craft, journey planning considerations, vehicle preparation and maintenance, and evasive manoeuvring. This will be followed by practical driving and assessments in which attendees undertake basic car-handling skills and advanced handling and braking.

Our training package includes:

- ▶ Principles of personal security
- ▶ Itinerary planning and journey management
- ▶ Vehicle security and vehicle related security incidents
- ▶ Vehicle maintenance and inspections
- ▶ Rules of the road
- ▶ The systems of car control
- ▶ Progressive driving
- ▶ Defensive manoeuvring
- ▶ Adverse weather and night driving

Who should attend?

Designed for individuals and organisations who are driving and using vehicles in high-risk environments or unfamiliar environments, where vehicle types, driving standards and road conditions may vary widely from those with which they are accustomed.
